Summary of the Webinar

This webinar will give two researchers, Mylène Jaccoud, Professor at the School of Criminology at the University of Montreal and Justin C. Tetrault, Assistant Professor of Sociology and Native Studies at the University of Alberta, the opportunity to share issues, findings and perspectives on indigenous community reintegration initiatives and programs in Canada with the audience. Reflecting on the practices of Canadian institutions and indigenous understandings of education, the panelists will interrogate these programs in terms of their relevance to indigenous people incarcerated in Canada. They will also share their recent research in collaboration with multidisciplinary non-indigenous and indigenous research groups.
